

What is a Fragile X Clinic?

A Fragile X clinic provides individuals and families affected by one or more of the Fragile X-associated Disorders with a comprehensive evaluation and treatment recommendations. These are supported by the latest medical, educational, and research knowledge available. All of the clinics provide medical services (including medication evaluation and consultation) supervised by a MD. Multidisciplinary services and/or referrals, such as occupational therapy, speech and language therapy, behavioral therapy and genetic counseling, are available within the institutions or through referral. Many of the clinics also participate in collaborative research efforts with other Fragile X clinics and professionals. All of the clinics have an emphasis on fragile X syndrome (FXS) while also providing services and/or referrals for fragile X-associated tremor/ataxia syndrome (FXTAS) and fragile X-associated primary ovarian insufficiency (FXPOI).

Besides serving families closer to where they live, these clinics also benefit the Fragile X community by sharing knowledge, research, and clinical experience with one another. This in turn helps the patients whom they serve.
